Independent Initiative

savefarmers.in is an independent public awareness initiative associated with the Cooperative Farmers Forum – Shivamogga District. It is not affiliated with, endorsed by, sponsored by or operated by the Government of India, Government of Karnataka, or any government department or authority.

Website Purpose

The Website provides public information and facilitates preparation and communication of individual objections or representations concerning the ESA process and related issues.

No Guarantee of Government Action

Submitting an objection through the Website does not guarantee that any government authority will accept, register, acknowledge, consider or act upon it. Users should independently verify official filing requirements and retain any acknowledgement received.

Official Information

ESA notifications, maps, proposals, deadlines and procedures may change. The latest applicable official government document should be treated as authoritative where there is a difference.

User-Generated Information

The Forum does not independently verify every statement, location detail, survey number or other fact supplied by users. Users are responsible for reviewing their submission.

No Professional Advice

Website information is for public awareness and is not legal, financial, environmental, land-title or other professional advice. Users requiring advice about individual rights or property should consult an appropriately qualified professional.

Email Workflow

Where the Website opens a user's email application or provides a generated objection link, the user remains responsible for reviewing the recipient, message and document/link before sending.

Effective / Last Updated: 25 August 2026

This document is prepared from the information supplied for this website. It should be reviewed and approved by the Forum and, where appropriate, a qualified Indian legal/privacy professional before publication. It is not legal advice.
